WAR SUMMARY OF THE LATEST EVENTS

The French at Verdun speed the parting guest. The midnight Paris report says that late Wednesday afternoon "in a brilliant assault our troops captured German positions to the northwest of Mort Homme. We took about one hundred prisoners and four machine guns." This is the third successful advance of the French to the north of Verdun during the past few days. These forward movements mark the end of the German attempt to capture the fortress. French aerial scouts recently reported that some of the German siege howitzers were being removed from the front. The failure of the Germans to counter-attack, after losing trenches for the possession of which a few weeks ago men's lives were sacrificed in thousands, indicates that the enemy's infantry is not nearly so numerous as it was, and that the operations on the Verdun front have now no more significance than trench warfare on any other part of the battle line.

Assuming that the Crown Prince has confessed defeat at Verdun, what is the probable course of events? Some British military writers are of the opinion that the Germans will remain on the defensive on the western front during the summer, and that the chief offensive effort will be made along the Dvina, on the eastern front, in the hope of penetrating to Petrograd and humbling Russia by the occupation of her capital. It will be remembered that in the spring of 1905, after the second fierce attack on Ypres, which corresponded to the recent attack on Verdun, although not so long sustained, the Germans transported most of their heavy guns to Galicia and Poland as soon as the ground was dry enough to permit of their free movement along the roads, and drove the Russians out of both territories. The drive in Galicia was begun about this time last year, and physical conditions now lend themselves to a renewal of the struggle in the east. The effective use of the German fleet in a campaign against Petrograd is possible, and it is almost inconceivable that Germany, at the crisis of the war, will let her ships lie at their moorings in Kiel Bay when they could co-operate in a movement for the capture of Petrograd.

There is another programme more likely to appeal to the German staff. To transport the bulk of Germany's striking force to the Dvina cannot be a difficult matter when one considers the remarkable extent and efficiency of Prussia's state railways, but to bring back that force hurriedly were the British army in northern France to launch a great offensive would not be so easy. A week's delay in opposing a British advance with an adequate army might well prove fatal. If a British attack early this summer is more feared by the German General Staff than a Russian advance the programme most likely to appeal to Berlin is the removal of the bulk of the German reserves, alike of guns and of men, to points opposite the British trenches, and their employment in an endeavor by local attacks to prevent a British concentration for a general advance. If from this time forward German pressure on the British front increases, and the German artillery fire becomes most intense, it may be assumed that Germany is retaining the bulk of her striking force on the western front, and will not attempt any farther forward movement in Russia.

Only on the main east and west fronts are there opportunities for the working out of large strategic projects. There will be no Balkan adventure this year. Talk of an attack on Egypt is idle. If Turkey and Bulgaria are assailed by the Allies from the Saloniki base they will have to do the best they can with their own armies. Germany can provide munitions, but neither she nor Austria can any longer spare men in sufficient numbers to count. It is manifest that in Asia Minor the Turk is on his last legs, despite the flash in the pan at Kut-el-Amara, and Germany will not risk her own safety by sending an army to hold Anatolia. The large operations of the war, now that a decision has been reached at Verdun, must take place along the Dvina or in northwestern France and Flanders. At the moment it would seem that both the Allies and the Central Powers have determined to fight it out in France and Flanders.

FARM LABOURERS Wanted.

The Western Provinces of Canada are now experiencing an acute shortage of Farm Laborers for spring and summer work, which makes steady work and good wages a certainty. Saskatchewan has called for five thousand laborers, and an equal number is required in Manitoba and Alberta.

After a thorough canvass of the territory served by the Canadian Northern Ry. it was found that an average of 27 men is required at the points from which returns were received. An average wage of $45.00 per month, including board is being paid, the highest being $3.00 per day.

For further particulars as to the men required and the wages being paid at the various points apply to in north-west France and Flanders. At the moment it would seem that both the Allies and the Central Powers have determined to fight it out in France and Flanders.

The zeppelin raid of Tuesday night on the northeast coast of England and the southeast coast of Scotland resulted in 30 casualties from the explosion of 100 bombs. An aeroplane raid on Deal yesterday caused the wounding of one man. In neither case was any damage of military importance done. For the money invested in them and the time and labor spent on developing them the Zeppelins have been one of the great failures of the war. A report comes from Norway that the Zeppelin L-20 has been driven ashore there and become a total loss. Some of her crew have been rescued. The airship may have been one of the group in Tuesday's raid.

German plotters are at work in Sweden attempting to rouse the hostility of the Swedes on the ground that Russia is erecting fortifications of what is alleged to be a permanent nature on the Aland Islands. This group commands the entrance to the Gulf of Bothnia, from the ports of which come most of the iron ore-laden vessels, whose supplies are important to the German steel industry. British and Russian submarines last season interfered greatly with this traffic, depriving Swedish mine owners of a very lucrative business. A submarine base on the Aland Islands would practically destroy the ore trade altogether, for it would be unprofitable to haul the ore by rail to Stockholm or other harbors south of the Aland Islands and run the blockade thence to German ports.

Italian and Austrian reports concur in placing the emphasis on the operations in the Trentino. The Italians are striving to get within striking distance of Trent. Were they to obtain possession of the valley of the Adige there, the Austrian positions at Riva and Rovereto would become untenable. It would seem that General Cadorna is going to devote most of his attention this season to Alpine warfare. The Austrian lines around Goritz have proved a very hard nut to crack, and conditions are such that Italy's numerical superiority is not of much value. On the long line of Alpine frontier conditions may be found more favorable for the winning of a decisive victory.

Over 24,000 surgeons are attending the German troops.

The allies denied that they had established a blockade of Greece.

A German aeroplane raided Deal, England, but caused no casualties.

HELD SECTION SEVEN DAYS.

Canadian Brigade Put Up Heroic Defence at St. Eloi.

OTTAWA, May 2.—The heroic defence of the St. Eloi positions by one of the Canadian infantry brigades is recorded in the weekly communique
of the Canadian general representative at the front. The splendid part played by a Nova Scotia battalion,
and many individual instances of gallant and conspicuous service are given in the despatch, which follows:

Canadian General Headquarters,
May 1.—During the week the main efforts of the enemy on the Canadian front were once again centred on our
St. Eloi positions. For seven days
one of our brigades held this section.
It was an eventful experience for the men concerned. On the second night four separate bombing attacks were made by the Germans on advanced posts of a Nova Scotia battalion. In each instance the enemy was repulsed by detachments under Lieuts.
W. A. Cameron and L. S. Johnston.

On the same night another of our posts, under the command of Lieut.
G. C. Farrish, was heavily bombarded with grenades. After daylight a German bombing party advanced against this position under cover of intense artillery fire. When well clear of its trenches it was greeted with rapid machine gun and rifle fire
and retired hurriedly, leaving a number of dead or wounded on the field.

On the next three nights further bombing attacks were delivered by the enemy and beaten off. A party of Germans succeeded in getting into one of the disused trenches on the front of a New Brunswick battalion.
A patrol consisting of Lieut. Mowatt and Ptes. Bamsey, Kennedy, and Chatterton, stumbled on the enemy.
Private Bamsey, who was leading as guide, was suddenly hit on the head and fell. Almost at the same instant the explosion of a bomb wounded Lieut. Mowatt in both feet, while another bomb hit Private Kennedy in the chest, but fortunately failed to explode. Private Chatterton, who alone of the patrol was unwounded,
returned to our lines for help. Sergt.
Henderson started out at once with reinforcements, when the enemy retired and our wounded were brought in.

REBELLION IS BROKEN.

Authorities Say Work Remains to Be Done in Rural Ireland.

LONDON, May 2.—An official statement issued Sunday night by the Official Press Bureau regarding the situation in Ireland says:

"The general officer commanding-
in-chief, the Irish command, has reported the situation in Dublin much more satisfactory. Throughout the country there was still much more to be done, which would take time, but he hoped that the back of the rebellion had been broken.

"Last night messengers were sent out from the rebel leaders in Dublin
to the rebel bodies in Galway, Clare, Wexford, Louth, and Dublin Counties, ordering them to surrender, and priests and the Royal Irish Constabulary are doing their utmost to disseminate this information.

"As regards the situation in Dublin, rebels from the areas of Sackville street, the post-office, and the Four Courts are surrendering freely. More incendiary fires took place in Sackville street Saturday night, but the fire brigade is now able

One Thousand Rebels Now En Route For English Prisons.

"Irish Republic" Passes With the Unconditional Surrender of the Sinn Feiners Both in Dublin and in Provincial Towns—Most of the Prisoners Are Young Men and Boys.

LONDON, May 2.—The remnants of the Sinn Feiners' rebel army which a week ago Monday set out to establish a "Republic of Ireland"
surrendered unconditionally Monday,
following the example of the main body in Dublin, which succumbed
two nights ago to the Government troops after death and destruction
had reigned supreme in the Irish capital throughout the past week.

One thousand rebel prisoners were counted in Dublin Sunday. Isolated groups of snipers who held out in their well-hidden haunts long after the capitulation of the main body, surrendered one by one Monday. Of the 1,000 insurgents taken in Dublin 489 were sent to England Sunday night. A boatload of 250 prisoners arrived at Holyhead Monday. There were no wounded among them. The most of them were young men and boys. They were immediately put aboard a train for prisons in the interior of England.

The "army of the republic" has unqualifiedly surrendered; the "seat of the Government," the general postoffice on Sackville street, is a heap of ruins, the "commander-in-chief,"
James Connolly, is dead, and the "president," Peter Pearce, a prisoner in the hands of the Government troops. The republic's newspaper,
The Irish War News, has suspended publication—as such at least—its day-dream of "our allies in Europe,"
the Germans, "conquering England,"
having failed to become a reality.

A despatch from Kingston, Ireland, dated 8 p.m. Sunday says:

The proclamation issued by "Provisional President" Pearce advising the surrender of all the rebels follows:

"In order to prevent the further slaughter of unarmed people, and in the hope of saving the lives of our followers, who are surrounded and hopelessly outnumbered, the members of the provisional government at headquarters have agreed to unconditional surrender, and the com-

VICTIMS OF OWN GASES.

Germans Suffer Heavily When Fumes Blow Back.

LONDON, May 2.—The Germans made several attacks Saturday and Sunday against the British lines, but have everywhere been repulsed.
Under cover of gas an assault was attempted opposite Hulluch, but the gas broke back over the enemy trenches, and the Germans were seen leaving their trenches and running to the rear on a front of about seven hundred yards. Judging by the number of ambulances seen coming up to Hulluch, declares Sir Douglas Haig's report, the enemy must have suffered considerable casualties from our artillery and his gas. The ground behind the enemy lines was colored by gas on a front of about a thousand yards to a depth of three thousand yards.

Gas was also liberated north of the Messines road on a 2,000-yard front, but the infantry attack which followed was broken down by the British fire. An attack with bombers at another point was equally unsuccessful.

German Raider May Have Escaped.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Evening Post says:

"That another German raider had slipped through the British sea patrol was reported Sunday in financial circles, and war risk rates, both here
and in London, stiffened as a result.
"The raider is believed to have escaped during the recent bombardment of British east coast towns by a German battle-cruiser squadron."

SWANS TAUGHT TO SWIM.

The Black Necked Variety Are Afraid of Water When Young.

You're acquainted with the proverbial phrase, "Like a duck takes to the water." That may apply all right to ducks, but there are some water birds
which have to be taught to swim, just as we do. They hate the water at first just as much as a boy hates the bathtub. One of these birds, which takes swimming lessons from its parents, is the black necked swan.

The swan babies are called cygnets.
They are hatched in an elaborate nest
which the parent swan builds along the edge of a pool. The little cygnets are able to walk and run as soon as they are out of their shells, but they can't swim.

So the mother swan takes them for a little ferry ride. She puts them on her
back and starts out across the pond.

to resume work.

"It is further reported that up to the present 707 prisoners have been taken. Included among these is the Countess Markievicz.

"The rebels at Enniscorthy are reported to be still in possession of this place, and a mixed column of cavalry, infantry, and artillery, including 4.7 guns, has been sent from Wexford with a view to engaging the rebels. The latest information from Enniscorthy shows that the rebel leader at this place does not believe the rebel leaders' message from Dublin, and has proceeded to that city in a motor car under escort to verify the information. In the meantime a truce exists.

"A deputation for a similar purpose from the rebels at Ashbourne (County Meath) has also been sent to Dublin. At Galway the rebels are believed to be disbanding, and few arrests have been made.

"At New Ross, Gorey, Wicklow, Bagenalstown, and Arklow the situation is reported normal. Carlow and Dungarvin are believed to be quiet."

TURKS REPULSED.

Advance Guard Defeated by Russians at Diarbekr.

LONDON, May 2.—The Russians
in their advance southwards from Bitlis, after dislodging the Turks
from a mountain range, have got close to Diarbekr, but they will probably have to fight another engagement with the Turks before they are able to advance south and west upon Nisbin, the present railhead of the Bagdad railway.

The Russian official report, received here from Petrograd Sunday, says that the Russians repulsed near Diarbekr an attack by Turkish advanced guards.

This is taken to indicate that the Turks have brought up fresh forces to oppose the advance of the Russians. It is believed that the grand duke has full knowledge of the Turkish dispositions, and has made the proper moves to check them. The decision will not be known, perhaps,
for several days.

Germany Protests to Greece.

ATHENS, May 2, via London.—
Replying to the protest from Berlin
against the transportation of Serbian soldiers over Greek railways, the Greek Government has informed Germany, says The Journal d'Athens, that the Cabinet recognizes such an act would be a violation of neutrality. This action, the newspaper adds, followed a declaration from Germany
that in the event of such transportation German aeroplanes would be obliged to bombard the railways and transport trains.

(Signed) "Pearce."

The main body of the Sinn Fein rebels in Dublin surrendered during the course of the day.

There was, however, considerable fighting throughout Sunday in Dublin and the suburbs. It was especially severe at Ball's Bridge, outside Dublin.

The rebels in the College of Surgeons surrendered Sunday morning.

Briefly, this is the fate that has befallen the Sinn Feiners' revolt, as far as Dublin is concerned. Officially, the end of their reign of terror is described by the following summarized facts:

Immediately upon their unconditional surrender at the hands of the Government troops, who had practically "burned them out," the leader of the Dublin rebels sent out messengers to revolutionist bodies in the west and south, including the Counties of Clare, Galway, Wexford, and Louth, and those immediately adjacent to the Irish capital, and ordered them to lay down their arms and give up to the Government troops. Priests and constab. at once spread this news broadcast to bring about a speedy end of all the outbreaks in Ireland.

When the message from Dublin reached the rebel leader in Enniscorthy it first fell upon deaf ears.
"Impossible!" "Never!" greeted the bringer of the order to surrender.
Persuasion on the part of the messenger, however, finally succeeded in prompting the Enniscorthy "general"
to order a truce, and then to betake
himself to Dublin in a convoyed
motor car to find out the true state of affairs for himself. Similar doubts were expressed by the rebel chief in Ashbourne, whence a deputation is now on the way to the levelled Dublin post-office. In Galway the rebels heeded the order from Dublin and began disbanding.

England's First Almanac.

The first almanac printed in England
was the "Kalendar of Shepherdes," which appeared in 1497, just forty years after Gutenberg printed his first almanac at Mentz. From that time onward almanacs were numerous. "omens and prognostications" being added in most cases to the calendar information.
One of the earliest specimens preserved enjoys the title of "The Prognosty-cyon of Master John Tybault, of the influence of the moon, of peas and warre and of sykenesses of the yere,
with the constellacions that be under the planets and the revolutions of kynges and princes."—London Mirror.

Church Steeples.

The church steeple was originally designed as a means of advertising the situation of the church. Among the low buildings which originally prevailed the steeple was an impressive heacon, but under modern conditions it is a failure, as even the most towering steeple is lost among the higher industrial structures reared around it. The steeple is really being replaced by electricity, which answers the purpose
much more satisfactorily. Electrically illuminated signs are being introduced quite extensively for this purpose.

little ferry ride. She puts them on her
back and starts out across the pond.
The baby swans, frightened at first,
soon get used to seeing water all around them.

One day the mother swan turns her long neck and gives her babies a gentle push into the water. Such a scam-ble and splash! The babies flounder
around and try their best to get back on their mother's dry feathers. Finally they learn that their feet are webbed paddles, given to them for swimming purposes, and they are able to glide over the water as gracefully and as easily as their parents.

PORTUGAL'S HOMER.

Camoens, Who Wrote "The Lusiad," Died in Abject Poverty.

"The Lusiad" is one of the noblest records ever written of national glory
and success.

Camoens, its gifted author, determined to do for Portugal what Homer had done for Greece. The great poem was written in the sixteenth century, which has been called the heroic age of Portugal, and its main feature is the rounding of the Cape of Good Hope by Vasco da Gama, while a most interesting episode is the crowning after death
of Inez de Castro as queen of Portugal.

"The Lusiad" took its name from Lusius, who was said to have founded Lisbon. Its author was born about 1520, and his career, which began brilliantly, was blighted by the death of a broken heart of the lady of his love,
for whose sake he was banished from the land.

Camoens wrote "The Lusiad" in his banishment and was recalled in 1571.
losing on the way all his property except his poem. Pensioned at first by the king, this great epic poet of Portugal died in great poverty and misery
in 1570, when his patron was also dead.

Knowledge and Culture.

A great memory does not make a philosopher any more than a dictionary can be called a grammar. There are men who embrace in their minds a vast multitude of ideas, but with little sensitivity about their real relations toward each other. These may be antiquarians, annalists, naturalists; they may be learned in the law; they may be versed in statistics; they are most useful in their own place. I should shrink from speaking disrespectfully of them. Still, there is nothing in such attainments to guarantee the absence of narrowness of mind. If they are nothing more than well read men or men of information they have not what specially deserves the name of culture of mind or fulfills the type of liberal education.—Newman.

SIR SAM AND HIS POSITION

The good guessers are inferring a lot from the fact that Major-General Sir Sam Hughes arrived in Ottawa in civilian dress and that the Hon. Robert Rogers was the Cabinet Minister chosen to welcome the general home. From these two outstanding facts the whole subsequent course of the Government's negotiations with Sir Sam and Sir Sam's negotiations with the Government is predicted.

The reception organized by the Ottawa Conservative Association, which included a brass band, is like the works of the watch—has nothing to do with the case. Moreover, the brass band was non-committal, much more so than brass bands usually are. It did not play "Lo The Conquering Hero Comes," or anything partisan like that. All it breathed was "Home, Sweet Home," and Sir Sam could take his change out of that. It was plain enough that so far as his colleagues in the Cabinet are concerned, Sam is on probation.

Plenty of noise Sir Sam makes about fighting all his enemies, "from highest to lowest," but his appearance in mufti at the Union Station—although he had plenty of time to disguise himself as a Major-General in his private car—is taken to mean that he approaches his trouble in a civilian, if not in a civil, spirit. For the time being, he is not the Man on Horseback, and he will not ride anybody down.

Having resumed the role of prominent citizen, Sir Sam takes the ordinary precautions of a prominent citizen who is, too respectable to be guilty usually takes. He engages four lawyers, four K.C.'s of the highest talents and the biggest retaining fees, keeps three at his elbow to nudge him and say, "Get thee behind me, Satan," when his temper gets the better of him, and leaves a third in New York to comb the witnesses from the United States. This is strictly within his rights, for counsel for the defence must be seized not only of what the witnesses know, but also of what they don't know, which is equally important.

There are rumours, for example, that Colonel John Wesley Allison is sick down south somewhere—suffering from brain storm, neurasthenia, yellow fever or something like that. It has been suggested that his complaint is amnesia, or loss of memory, which has become a very popular disease lately among people who want to forget their responsibilities for a shorter or longer period. Whatever is the matter with Sir Sam's soul mate, Parliament will insist that he appear before the Royal Commission and tell how much he is unable to recollect. What is truth, said jesting Pilate. It is that part of the evidence which the witnesses fail to remember. Consequently the more truthful Colonel John Wesley Allison is the more he is likely to forget.

Meanwhile, the Public Accounts Committee would like to look the Colonel over and see how sick he really is. What's more, a very considerable section of the Conservative party, voiced by the Hon. Andrew Broder, R. R. Bennett, of Calgary, and Nichol, of leaves office, human nature being so constituted that it doesn't recognize heroes when they are dismounted. As for Sir Sam's drag with the Orange order it is said to be political rather than personal, and due to stop as soon as he ceases to be a Cabinet Minister.

Sir Sam is a member of the Government, but not Minister of Militia, his duties in that department having been handed over "at his own request" to Premier Borden, so that Sam can devote all his time to squaring himself before the Royal Commission. Everybody seems to agree that Sam has a man's job ahead of him. Meanwhile the Government is in possession of Major-General Sam's portfolio and possession is nine points of the law.

TRAPPING A PYTHON.

The Monster Is a Victim of His Own Greedy Appetite.

The python's weak point is its stomach; it is a glutton. Not satisfied with a full supper, it will start at once on next week's breakfast if by chance that future meal happens to be within easy reach.

A python generally lives in a hole in the ground or a hollow in a tree, but if it can find an old ruin in the jungle—and there are many old ruins in India—it likes to take up its sleeping quarters there, because even in the heaviest rains the water runs off the ruins quickly, whereas a hole in the ground is likely to be flooded. The python needs to eat only once a week, and to get that meal it lies flat along the bough of a tree near a stream and waits for its prey to come to drink.

When the natives see the long trail that the python's body makes near the bank and find a heap of ruins near by they make a hole in the ruined wall just exactly big enough for the python to get through. Then they tie a pig to a stake near the hole on one side of the wall, and on the other side of the wall opposite the hole they tie another pig to a stake. They also tie a wire to the leg or the tail of the near side pig, and as evening draws on they twist it from a distance, and the pig squeals. As the python comes home to bed it hears the squeals.

So the python comes along merrily and seizes its supper at a single bite. Down goes the pig into the big snake's throat, sucked in slowly by sheer muscular action. In about half an hour the pig has passed completely down the long neck, and in another half hour it is down a couple of yards farther into the python's stomach.

Most animals would go to sleep right away after a gorge like that. But meanwhile the second pig on the other side of the wall has realized its unhappy brother's woeful fate and has set up a most distressing noise. The python puts its head through the hole and sees it.

"Ah!" it says to itself. "Here's my next week's breakfast."

And instead of waiting for next week to come that greedy python swallows the second pig too. The wily natives wait until the second pig is well on its way down the python's body; then they have the snake caught. Pig No. 1 prevents it from advancing, and pig No. 2 prevents it from retreating.

THE MAN IN THE IRON MASK

Who the Unfortunate Prisoner
Has Never Been Disclosed
When He Died His Body
destroyed by Chemicals in H

A famous state mystery of Louis XIV. of France was the notorious prisoner, the Man in the Iron Mask. Many are the guesses have been ventured as to who Plays and novels have been written with the iron mask as the character, but his identity has been a secret. It is known with that St. Mars during his life was a prisoner a man whose face was covered with a mask of velvet fastened by springs behind the head.

The guards had orders to kill the man if he ever exposed his face. St. Mars' own life depended body finding out who his prisoner. His first prison was the Bastille. When St. Mars was transferred to the Isles of St. Martin, king himself told the jailer, a prisoner with him and cautioned not to let him speak to any of his guards.

On the night of April 20, 1681, the prisoner was escorted by a troop of soldiers to the Bastille. He stopped at Bron, some leagues from Lyons. From the litter of the young man of slim and delicate face hidden by a mask, his hands firmly tied, in which he lay down on a couch prepared for him. Next day ten horsemen with sealed orders to convey the prisoner with the utmost secrecy to the fortress of Pignerol. So the Man in the Iron Mask, twenty-nine years of captivity, the impassive, silent, remote Mars.

Several years later the Man in the mask was seen again where he was transferred to St. Martin. This time troopers surrounded the prisoner covered with waxed cloth. The more daring of the courtiers peeked through a small opening outside the locked shutters. The prisoner sat with his back to the window, and they could not see whether he had on his mask. Mars sat opposite him with his back to each side of his plate.

This prisoner was the much correspondence between him and Louis XIV. of France. He continually was asking about the king's health, and about the king's affairs. "Let there be so many deaths after the other that they cannot hear a word, and you may listen to anything he has to say, under any pretext whatever. He will die with death if he ever opens his mouth to speak of anything but the king's health."

tion of the Conservative party, advised by the Hon. Andrew Broder, R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, and Nichol, of Kingston, keep an urging that no vindication will be complete which omits a full statement from Colonel John Wesley Allison.

Of course both sides will handle the witnesses for all the truth there is in them. The truth may get mixed in the hands of so many lawyers, but the public will not fail to notice that Sir Sam has four lawyers—four, count 'em, four—to keep things straight. Consequently the truth on his side ought to assay high. Some people argue loosely that the more difficult one's case is the more lawyers one ought to have so as to make it that much more difficult. But obviously Sir Sam takes no stock in this argument. On the contrary, the way it works out with him is that the more innocent you are the more lawyers you need to prove it, such is the denseness of the general public in distinguishing truth from error. And as one's innocence increases so must one's lawyers increase in mental calibre, professional weight, personal influence and scale of payment. When it comes to lawyers, the best is none too good for Sir Sam. His present outfit must cost him at least six hundred dollars a day. I don't know why people overpay lawyers that way, unless it's conscience. However, if the Meredith-Duff Commission lasts as long as the Davidson Commission, it will put Sam back about $220,000, which is a tidy sum of money these hard times. If the Major-General has to pay it out of his own pocket it will take all he got out of the Lindsay Warder, his savings as a Cabinet Minister and then some. But perhaps the Government, that is to say the people of Canada, will pay the lawyers' bills for Major-General Sam. It ought to be worth that much to have our War Lord vindicated. I don't know the precedents in Warren Hastings' case, but I believe the British Government paid the defendant's costs.

The other outstanding fact is that the Honourable Rogers met Major-General Sam at the station and nearly shook his hand off. It happened to be Palm Sunday when these whilom enemies joined palms, not wholly one may suspect as a guarantee of good faith, but for advertising purposes. This bears out the supposition that Sam is in a docile frame of mind and will take advice not only from his lawyers but from his colleagues in the Cabinet. This caressing in public, this rainbow of peace, officially tendered by the Honourable Bob to Major-General Sam, is an intimation that the Cabinet is going to hang together in this matter, because, as John Hancock once said, that is a better way than hanging separately. The Cabinet is going to see Sam through and when Sam is through they will and when Sam is through they will probably let him out. There is plenty of glory awaiting an ex-Cabinet Minister, who happens to be a full-blown Major-General, at the front. This is not quite a prophecy, but it is a pretty good guess. The popular theory is that Sir Sam ought to be callored Sir Samson, that he pulls down the temple if he gets peevish, that he is Honorary president of the I-Go-You-Go-Club, and that if he quits all quit, while Sir Sam goes out and runs a khaki election with himself as the hero. There is said to be very little danger of this happening, because an ex-Cabinet minister is never much of a hero the day after he

Interviewing a Humorist.

"Good morning, Wagge. What's on the carpet today?" asked Bingleton.

"Dust," said Wagge.

"Clever boy! But I mean what have you on foot?"

"Shoes," said Wagge solemnly.

"Oh, come off, Wagge. What are you up to these days?"

"Date," sighed Wagge.

"I'll give you just one more chance. You poor frivolous fellow. What are you doing now?"

"Everybody," said Wagge.

"As usual, eh?" said Bingleton as he shoved the remains down the nearest available coal hole.

The Word "Derrick."

The word "derrick" for a machine used to lift heavy weights is curiously derived from a London hangman in the beginning of the seventeenth century whose name was Theodoric and who is often mentioned in old plays. "Rides circuit with the devil, and Derrick must be his host and Tyborne the inn at which he will light" occurs in "The Bellman of London," published in 1616. The name thus corrupted came afterward to be applied by an easy transition to the gallows and later still to any frame or contrivance resembling it in shape.

How a Meaning Changes.

"Cheat" is a word that now has a very ugly sound. To cheat a man is to defraud him. Originally the word conveyed no such meaning. The old word "eschent" referred to the dues that led to the crown. It came from the French excheoir (Latin, excedere). The modern meaning that attaches to the word tells a sad tale of the extortion and greed that must have been practiced in collecting the dues.

Napoleon's Power.

General Foy, the French military critic of the time of Napoleon, speaking of Napoleon's strength and his weakness, said: "Only the founders of religion have exercised upon their followers an authority comparable to that which made him the absolute master of his armies. This moral power became to him a fatal gift. He came to believe that he could prevail even against the most powerful material force, and this led him to scorn certain rules, the long continued violation of which could not remain unpunished."

CHANGED HIS MIND.

Andrew Lang Didn't Like Stevenson
When They First Met.

Andrew Lang was the unyielding enemy of everything that savored of decadence. He particularly disliked the affected young aesthetics of the 1890's.
And, although he came, as the world knows, to be the devoted friend of Robert Louis Stevenson, his first impressions of him were most unfavorable, for he mistook him for an aesthete of the aesthetes.

In his book "On the Trail of Stevenson" Clayton Hamilton gives a record of Andrew Lang's account of his first glimpse of Stevenson. Andrew Lang, it seems, practiced the conversational economy associated chiefly with the name of the late Alfred Jingle, Esq.
Mr. Lang said—and Mr. Hamilton jot-ted it down immediately after in the London Underground—these things:

"Mentone promenade. Saw him coming. Didn't like him. Long cape.
Long hair. Queer hat. — queer.
Hands—white, bony, beautiful. Didn't like the cape. Didn't like the hair.
Looked like a — aesthete. Never liked aesthetes. Can't stand them.
Talked well. Saw that. Still seemed another aesthete Colvin had discovered. Didn't like him. Didn't like him at all. * * * Later—oh, yes—but I needn't tell you that. Didn't like him at first. Took time."

Origin of Dollar.

The dollar was originally a Jochimsthal-gulden-groschen. But that name was too long for general use, and it was cut down to thaler, which was transliterated into the present form.
It could not be either a gulden or a groschen, because the gulden had always been minted of gold. It was not a groschen, because that coin was of small value, so the two were combined.
The essential part of the name was Jochimsthal, or Joachimsthal, as it is now spelled, the Joachim valley, in Austria, from which the silver was derived for the minting of this large coin. As that great silver mine is located in Bohemia, the original thaler was the Bohemian dollar. Those silver mines have since attained worldwide fame, because they are the source of radium, but the dollar comes closer home to most of us.

A Classic Monster.

"Write down all you know about centaurs," said a schoolteacher to a new pupil. The boy returned to his seat and presently handed the teacher
the following attempt at composition:
"A centaur was ancient cavalry and archery all in one piece. He could not be knocked out of his saddle because he hadn't any, being the same person as his horse. If he needed a tent he did not need a stable, or if he needed a stable he did not need a tent—I do not know which—and if he needed forage
he did not need rations, or if he needed rations he did not need forage. Although he was mythical and primitive, this made him very convenient for

CHANGED IRON TO COPPER.

Curious Transformation Wrought by Nature's Alchemy.

Not so very long ago a curious find
was made in one of the copper mines
at El Cobre, Cuba. These mines, once among the richest in the world,
were abandoned for a long time on account of the insurrections in Cuba against the Spanish rule. In 1868 the coal supply was cut off by the insurgents, and consequently pumping became impossible, and the mines became filled with water.

After the Spanish war an American company bought the mines and proceeded to pump out the water. In one of the shafts thus made accessible was found what once represented an iron pickax as well as some crowbars.
The metal in these implements had, it is said, turned to copper. Extraordinary as this may appear, it can be scientifically explained.

The water, filtering through the rock
and the copper ore veins dissolved
some of the copper, the solution containing sulphate of copper. As soon as the sulphuric acid in this solution
touched the iron it at once dissolved that metal and deposited copper in its place, for sulphuric acid has a greater affinity for iron than for copper. In the process certain impurities which had existed in the iron were left behind undisturbed. The wooden handle of the ax was in good condition. The metal was porous and irregular in shape, but in the general outline preserved the form of the ax, somewhat enlarged in size.

A Japanese Custom.

On the anniversary of a Japanese boy's birthday his parents present him with a huge paper fish made of a gayly painted bag, with a hoop of proper dimensions forming the mouth. A string is tied to the hoop, and the fish is hoisted to a pole on the roof of the house. Then the wind rushing through causes the fish to swell out to the proper size and shape and gives it the appearance of swimming in the air. A Japanese boy carefully preserves every fish thus given to him. One can tell by the number of them that swim from the same pole how many birthdays the little fellow has celebrated.—London Telegraph.

Walking.

Every inch of every foot is meant for use. When a man walks in the right way, speaking literally, the back of the heel strikes the ground first.
Then the rest of the heel comes down,
after which the outer edge of the foot takes the bulk of the burden until the forward movement shifts the weight to the ball of the foot and finally to the toes. The ideal step is a slightly rock-ing motion. At no time should the entire foot be pressed against the ground.
Heel to toe is the movement. Try it and see how much farther and more easily you can walk. It's the Indian's way, and what poor Lo doesn't know about footwork can go into the discard.

MINSTRELS OF TRIPOLI.

Mysterious Musicians Who Fit From Place to Place at All Hours.

The strange music and mysterious musicians heard and seen in Tripoli are described by Mrs. Mabel L. Todd in her book, "Tripoli the Mysterious."

"The children are possessed of wonderful mental quickness. They acquire languages without effort, and the street urchins use easily French, Italian and all the languages that are current in their narrow streets. The strange music of the city, too—the weird chants, the cymbals, flageolets
and queer stringed instruments—deeply impresses the American visitor.

"Sometimes at dawn, when roofs and minarets were dazzlingly white against the sapphire sky, while yet the labyrinthine streets at the bottoms of stu-
co canyons lay in twilight gray, strange-men from the desert would stalk by,
making uncanny music.

"One of them, very tall and blacker
than most, was dressed in a low necked, short sleeved garment, greatly abbreviated as to skirts, playing mela-dies in a minor mode unknown to the west, and his stride was full of a dignity well nigh appalling.

"The instrument slightly resembled a Scotch bagpipe decorated with barbaric strings of shells and beads, and inflated skin with a primitive mouthpiece and at the opposite end two jointed protections like horns. The Pitcairn island is in latitude 25 de- grees 3 minutes south and longitude 130 degrees 6 minutes west, or almost exactly south of Vancouver island and just a little south of the tropic of Cap- ricorn. It was first settled in 1790 by nine mutineers from the English ship Bounty and eighteen natives of Tahiti. By the year 1808, when the island was discovered by the English, the popula- tion had grown to sixty-six persons, who formed a model community under the patriarchal government of John Adams, the only surviving mutineer, who had saved a Bible from the ship and was ruling with wisdom and jus- tice his little kingdom of slightly over two miles in length. "That's all right, doctor," smilingly interjected the friend, "but that would not work in my case."

"It wouldn't work?" responded the doctor wonderingly. "Why not?"

Head of Cerberus.

The most famous of dogs is Cerber us, who watches the entrance to Tar- tarus. He has three heads, but Her- cules dragged him to earth, and Or- pheus put him to sleep with his lyre. The original dog cakes were given to Cerberus by the sibyl who led Aeneas through hell. They were made of flour and seasoned with poppies and honey. He must have been an opium fiend, as the celestial drug is made from pop- pies. A "sop to Cerberus" was one of these cakes given to the monster by Greeks and Romans as a bribe to let them in without molestation.

LAYING A SPECTER.

A Filmy Blue Light and Some Daring Japanese Police.

In the village of Hase, near Kanazaki, at the end of the Rokosan range, says the Kobe Yushin, rumors were set afloat not long ago that in the small hours of the morning a phantom could be seen at the Miyama pass, where some time ago a murder was commit- ted by robbers. The ghost, whenever he caught sight of a lonely traveler, would attempt to stop him, as if he had something important to say. Peo- ple reported having seen a filmy blue light hovering in their path. In the whole village no one dared thereafter to walk that way after dark.

The rumor was laughed at by the skeptical police, but late one night a number of officers were instructed to patrol the haunted pass in the hope of bringing relief to the tortured minds of the timid by proving that there was no ghost or, should he be met, putting him under arrest. Every half hour after midnight a different policeman was to traverse the pass. Up to half past 2 nothing happened. Then one of them saw the blue light in front of him. He blew his whistle and ran—back to the police station. The others also ran—in the same direction.

When morning came the whole coun- tryside joined the police in making search for the ghost. What they found near the scene of the blue light was a human skeleton in a long disused kine- kiln. The local scientist declared that the light was a phosphorescence from the poor neglected bones, which were thereupon interred with full Buddhist ceremony at Kase, and the people as far as Kanazaki breathe easier.

Chinese Typewriters.

A Chinese typewriter is a wonderful contrivance. It has 4,200 characters. It has only three keys. It can make 50,000 letters or characters by combi- nations of the basic 4,200. To write a letter you turn a cylinder upon which are the 4,200 characters until the right one comes opposite the keyboard of the guide on another cylinder. After striking the printing key, just as on an American machine, you begin a still hunt for the next character which you are to print, and so on while reason lasts.—Christian Herald.

Turkish communication said that the position of the British at Kut-el-Amara was critical, and that they were expecting to receive small supplies of food by aeroplane. An official statement received yesterday from London showed that a last effort to send supplies to the garrison had failed. It was announced that a ship laden with supplies, which had been sent up the Tigris, had grounded about four miles east of the city.

RELIEF NOT FAR AWAY.

Less than a score of miles away, on the banks of the Tigris below the city, is a relief army which for months had been attempting to reach the besieged forces of Gen. Townshend. A few weeks ago several victories were announced and hope ran high in England that the mission would succeed. Of late, however, the Turks' resistance has increased and, aided by floods, they have been able to hold the British in check.

It should not be forgotten in regard to this campaign in Mesopotamia that from the Persian Gulf to a point north of Basra the British victories have resulted in the capture of some 300 miles of territory from the Turks. This territory is firmly occupied.

No official figures have been given out as to the number of troops which set forth from the Persian Gulf in November of 1914 on the expedition which has now ended in surrender. Unofficially the number has been estimated as high as 50,000, but it was probably considerably smaller than this. This force has suffered heavy losses in severe battles with the Turks.

TURKS PLAY WAITING GAME.

It was early in December of last year that General Townshend's army retreated to Kut-el-Amara. Since that time it has been besieged by a large army of Turks, cut off from all communication with the outside world except by wireless. During the long siege the British beat off many attacks by the Turks. They defended themselves in encounters about the city that the Turks at length desisted from their efforts to take the place by storm and decided to starve out the British.

LOSSES VERY HEAVY.

A few weeks after it became evident that the army at Kut-el-Amara would be unable to fight its way out a relief expedition was despatched. This force encountered comparatively little operation in the early stages of the march up the river, but as it drew nearer Kut-el-Amara it was opposed by formidable bodies of Turks, who were massed on both sides of the Tigris below the invested town. Several striking victories for the relief force were announced, but their last efforts have been countered by the Turks so successfully that the advance has been stopped.

During the Mesopotamia campaign there have been several changes in the important commands. General Nixon who was in chief command, and who, it is said, insisted upon Townshend going beyond Kut-el-Amara against the latter's wishes, retired, and Gen. Lake has lately been in full charge. General Aylmer, in command of the force trying to relieve Kut-el-Amara, was succeeded by Lieut.-Gen. Gorringe.

Throughout the Mesopotamia campaign the fighting had been heavy and the losses severe. On April 14 it was admitted the Tigris army up to that time had lost 8,100 men. Since then there have been several important battles between the Turks and the relief expedition.

The surrender of Gen. Townshend is one of the few instances of the war in which an entire fighting unit of

GEN. TOWNSHEND QUITS DEFENCE

London, April 30.—The following official announcement was made yesterday:

"After a resistance protracted for 143 days, and conducted with a gallantry and fortitude that will be forever memorable, General Townshend had been compelled, by the final exhaustion of his supplies, to surrender.

"Before doing so he destroyed his guns and munitions.

"The force under him consists of 2,970 British troops of all ranks and services, and some 6,000 Indian troops and their followers."

The Constantinople report via Berlin says: The Vice-Chief Commander of the Turkish forces operating in Mesopotamia reports that General Townshend with a force of 13,300 men, constituting the English garrison at Kut-el-Amara, has surrendered unconditionally to the Turkish command.

General Townshend probably was driven to surrender to avoid starvation of his forces. A recent official

THE POULTRY RAISER'S OPPORTUNITY.

From present indications Great Britain will require all the eggs and poultry Canada can produce during 1916. Last year, as a result of greatly increased production, Canada was able to ship to Great Britain the largest quantity of eggs exported since 1902, and at the same time reduced her imports for home consumption by nearly a million dozen.

Canadian eggs have found favor on the British market, and the prospects are that, providing they are available, much larger quantities will be shipped this year. The unusually high prices prevailing at the present time are largely due to this anticipated export demand.

Prices for poultry are also high, and will likely continue so for the rest of the season. Last fall and winter all the surplus Canadian poultry was exported at highly profitable prices. Between fifty and sixty cars of live poultry were shipped from Western Ontario to the Eastern States alone, and in the Maritime Provinces, particularly in Prince Edward Island, the export demand for canned poultry has greatly enhanced prices to producers.

Although some uneasiness has existed on the part of the trade as regards transportation facilities in view of the high freight rates and the shortage of boats, it is now reasonably certain that an even greater demand for Canadian poultry and eggs will occur this year. It is important, therefore, that every poultry producer takes steps to profit thereby, by hatching as many chickens as possible this spring.

Now is the time, by hatching early, by hatching everything possible in the month of May, to guard against the marketing of so much small, undersized, poorly finished poultry, which annually becomes a drag on the market in the fall of the year. Again it is only by hatching now, and giving the chickens every possible chance to thrive and grow, that a maximum supply of eggs can be obtained in the winter time.

Given their proportionate amount of attention, the growing of poultry brings quick and profitable returns to the farmer. With the increasing cost of meats, milk, butter, etc., there is a constantly increasing demand for poultry and eggs. The labor problem is not critical, as the boys and girls on the farm can readily take care of the poultry. The cost of feed is nominal prices for poultry and eggs are high—the highest in fact for many years. It is obvious, therefore, that Canadians have a patriotic, as well as an economic duty to perform in making the year 1916 the banner year for poultry production in Canada.

The man with the old clock under his arm laid it on the jeweler's showcase. "I wish you'd see what is the matter with this," he said.

The jeweler removed the dial, screwed his eyeglass into place and inspected the works of the ancient timepiece. "Nothing is the matter with it now. Its sufferings are over."

"Well, how much do I owe you?" asked the man.

"Nothing," answered the jeweler. "This isn't a professional treatment. This is a coroner's inquest."

Coun. Graham brought to the attention of the council the question of the bad state of the main roads leading into the town, particularly the Belleville road, the Selby road, the Camden road and other roads. This work cannot be done this year out of the street appropriations, or for that matter out of the street appropriations of any year. Some of the roads are at present in a very dangerous condition. He advised that every member of the council make it a point to visit these points, and then have the Mayor call a special meeting when each member would be in a position to advise, knowing the exact conditions. He was of the opinion that the amount needed to put these roads in a fair state of repairs would be about $8000.

The following accounts were ordered paid: L. McCabe, 25c; H. Schryver, 50c. An account from T. S. Henry, $20.00, was referred to the Finance Committee to report.

SUMMARY OF 1916 LEGISLATURE

Although still in opposition, the Liberals, under the leadership of Mr. Rowell, actually obtained many reforms in the Legislature this session, with the result that such a Conservative paper as the Hamilton Spectator, for example, contains the following item:—

"Mr. Scott Davidson, M.L.A., for North Brant, in speaking at London on Saturday; claimed that Mr. N. W. Rowell was practically leading the Legislature. Quite a few people will consider the remark is more than half true."

Among the reforms accomplished this session by Mr. Rowell and the Liberal party are the following:—

1. Prohibition.
2. Establishment of a Trades and Labor Branch.
3. War Resources Committee.
4. Northern Ontario development.
5. Hydro power for Eastern Ontario, as well as for the west.
6. Equal treatment for Ontario citizens in the armies of the allies.
7. Submission to the house of T.N. O. and Hydro accounts.

On the other hand, among the proposed reform advocated are:—

1. Radical programme of social reform in aid of the workmen and the working women.
2. A thorough going advance in agriculture.
3. Votes for women.
4. Destruction of the patronage system.
5. Government control of nickel.
6. Heavier taxation of private nickel companies.
7. Tax reform and to exclude tile drainage in taxation of farm property.

THRILLING AIR ESCAPE

The escape from capture or death of a young French lieutenant, whose captive balloon was set adrift when a shell severed the steel cable connecting him with the earth, is regarded as one of the most thrilling adventures in the fighting around Verdun. The incident was scarcely mentioned in the French army report but the suspense was so terrible that the soldiers forgot to fire while they watched the observer as his balloon became a mere speck and then fainter and fainter as a southerly wind wafted it toward the German positions.

Then suddenly a tiny gray speck was seen to part from the balloon, which shot up a thousand feet, but instead of falling to earth the speck seemed to be pulled up, short in mid-air. At last with the aid of glasses, observers saw that the speck was a human body suspended from a parachute. A mighty cheer arose as the truth was realized, but a full ten minutes of suspense lasted as the parachute with its human freight slowly descended, and finally landed near the French lines.

LIEUTENANT TELLS OF EXPERIENCE.

The young lieutenant in relating his experience stated that the first intimation he had that anything was wrong was when he felt a slight shock. He thought the telephone cable had broken but a glance at the barometer showed he was 5,000 feet in the air. This was just a few seconds after the German shell had cut the anchor cord. The hydrogen automatic control failed to work, leaving the parachute as the only means of escape.

"For a few seconds," says the lieutenant, "I held to the car with my hands. Then I let go. I must have dropped more than 100 feet before the parachute unfurled, and it was not an agreeable sensation. But after that I did not mind. I was able to look about me, and felt the sensation of complete security. When I was about 2,500 feet from the ground I began to see that the wind was carrying me towards the German lines. Then I seemed to lose consciousness. When I finally landed I was only 300 yards from the German line. I had been 20 minutes falling."

The officer refused to allow his name to be published. "It would be too much of a shock to my mother," he explained, "for she fancies that I am in a safe billet."

CANADIANS FIGHT HEAVY COMBATS

LONDON, May 1.—"Rather heavy fighting has been raging along the Canadian front. Intense artillery actions and infantry attacks by the Germans have been frequent. Our infantry has held the Germans, but the bombardments have been very trying. Our artillery has burst many German gas tanks. Our men have been very keen to get to close quarters."

Thus spoke Gen. Lessard, who has been inspecting the Canadian division under Gen. McDougal, and who arrived in London this week-end. The

The Mouths of Leaves.

The botanist, the real investigator who has got down to making real explorations for himself, will talk to you about the thousands of minute stomates on the surface of a leaf. These invisible stomates are really the mouths through which the leaves take in carbonic acid. They are most abundant on the upper surface of leaves. Each is an oval opening guarded by a pair of lips which open and close according to requirements. They vary from less than 1,000 to more than 20,000 to the square inch of leaf surface.

Fat and Thin.

The two women encountered each other at a dance. They had not met for several years.

"How thin you have grown!" exclaimed one.

"How fat you've got to be!" the other cried, and they stood gazing at each other in some dismay.

"Before you come to blows," remarked a mutual friend who stood by, "let's take a vote as to which is worse, to get too fat or to get too thin."—Exchange.

under Gen. McDougal, and who arrived in London this week-end. The general seems impressed with the system of training at Shorncliffe. The imperial authorities in France state that the reinforcements from this camp and the guards are a long way the best trained troops that they have received in France, and that there is nothing to choose from between the guards and the Canadians.

It is understood that Gen. Lessard gained many ideas in France and England which will revolutionize the system of training in Canada. It is understood that Gen. Steele is strongly in favor of territorializing the Canadian forces.

That is, he would have recruits enlist in Canada as reinforcements from that district at the front. It is contended that this will build up a local esprit de corps and ensures the men fighting among comrades under officers whom they know.

Greece is Overawed By Germany's Protest

ATHENS, April 30.—(Via London)—Replying to the protest from Berlin against the transportation of Serbian soldiers over Greek railways, the Greek Government has informed Germany, says The Journal d'Athens that the cabinet recognizes such an act would be a violation of neutrality.

This action, the newspaper adds, followed a declaration from Germany that in the event of such transportation German aeroplanes would be obliged to bombard the railways and transport trains.

LITTLE OF VERDUN

WORLD'S HISTORY HAS SEEN SUCH A STRUGGLE.

LIFE IS ENORMOUS

More than two months of conflicting, the titanic conflict at still a drawn battle. Al-Germans have made slight mate victory is still hovering in the air over the clouds of sorrow and the reek of unbur-
ied. There is only this certainthe battle of Verdun—it is the battle ever fought in the history. Mighty issues determination. It may not ar, but both sides are cer-
it will be a very big factor
in settlement.

is fighting even harder
at Verdun. Fresh troops continually being hurled at the
to encircle the French city.
The troops are as constantly being hurled up by the French to the defenders. It is estimated Germans are keeping a minimum of 300,000 and 400,000 men engaged in the attack. The fact that the German guns are pouring upon Verdun an average of 400,000 shells a day.

LIFE IS ALL-IMPORTANT.

Attacking forces are believed to be as numerous as the attackers opposing man to man, meeting the tremendous onslaught of the heavy German guns famous "curtain of fire,"
which inflames all that passes between France and Germany are at Verdun as nations never before.

Why the importance of this battle? Why spend the hundreds of thousands of German soldiers for this the French line? The reason Verdun is of vast strategic importance. It is on the River Meuse in the wooded country. Verdun is a cross-roads between Nancy and Metz and Rheims. From Verdun a straight road to Paris,
of 135 miles. To take Verdun is to gain command of all the hill country to the north and east of it, and to drive an entering wedge into the French line

which might mean final conquest.
Gaining Verdun might make it possible for the Germans to strike across Switzerland, reduce Nancy, cut off Belfort and reduce all the southerly portion of France.

CAPTURED ONLY CORPSES.

One of the classic descriptions of the fighting came from a wounded
French infantryman. He said:
"I would never have believed that human beings could face such a terrible fire. They knew it was certain death, for the wounded were stifled
under corpses or torn to pieces by shells. Wave after wave advanced.
At last they reached the spot where our fortifications had been on the spur of the hill, and began piling up bodies to protect themselves from our fire."

"Then our turn came. We were mad.
Nothing could have stopped us. We hurled ourselves at them with the bayonet among the shell holes and ruined emplacements. This was war as I had never seen it before. For a moment it was furious and equal.
Then came another French wave and another. We hurled them back, screaming, over the hillside. It was a battle without quarter. We captured only corpses."

THE CURTAIN OF FIRE.

The attack upon Verdun began Feb.
21. It was heralded with heavy artillery bombardments, the like of which had scarcely been known in the war.
Then, when the heavy German guns
had pulverized the ground, came wild charges, often in close formation. The French met these attacks with a scorching fire from machine guns and behind the charging lines of Germans
they lowered the curtain of fire.

This fire curtain is simply an enveloping, smothering rain of shells, dropping so accurately and unrelentingly that they make untenable a section of a given depth over a certain amount of front. The curtain of fire is employed to prevent the bringing up of reinforcements. Say there is a German charge over a front of 500 yards' breadth. The charging men must be supported by reserves. The French artillerymen turn upon the advancing ranks their rapid-fire guns, which can be played up and down a line at will,
very much as a garden hose is played upon a lawn. The heavier guns, the "75's" particularly, are used for the curtain of fire.

The charge must be ineffectual unless supports come up. The French artillerymen working the "75's" aim their guns at a point behind the first German line up and down that front
of 500 yards, and for a depth of say 50 yards, they plant shells as regularly as a farmer would sow a ploughed field. No reinforcements can break through this rain of death, and the ranks trapped between it and the machine guns are annihilated. In the first five days of fighting at Verdun
it is said that the curtain of fire killed almost 100,000 German soldiers.

But the destruction of life has been
by no means one-sided. In the wild fighting around Douaumont, taken and held finally by the Brandenburg-ers, after days of suspense and varying fortunes, many Germans and many Frenchmen were captured. More were killed and maimed. German observers tell in their reports of how
"giant black clouds of the big-cal-ibered guns rose like enormous trees."
They tell of artillery duels fought to the death, in which the French guns
finally were silenced and the artillery-men captured. They tell of French prisoners who cried out to their cap-tors as they were marched to the rear of the German lines that they had "surrendered only because they were cut off from all sides by the German fire."

DEAD BURNED IN FURNACES.

One of the most striking pictures of the horror of the Verdun battle comes from Seraing, behind the German lines, where there are huge blast furnaces. In these furnaces, it is said, many bodies of German soldiers who fall before Verdun are being burned.
The writer quotes a Belgian who lived in Seraing:

"When the inhabitants living near the blast furnaces receive orders from the German authorities to close their doors and windows and to extinguish all lights in their houses as soon as darkness falls, they know what it means. They are also strictly for-bidden to leave their houses."

"However, about a fortnight ago,
at great personal risk, I succeeded in getting a clear view of what occurred.
As soon as it became dusk several trains arrived from the front and were lined up before the furnaces."

BURN 800 IN A NIGHT,

"These trains were filled with corpses packed in furs and bound by steel wires. When the trains were unloaded all outer clothing was removed from the bodies, the metal buttons and the cloth being too precious to be wasted. Then the corpses were thrown, in a business like way, but not irreverently, into the furnaces. I should estimate the number burned

during a single night at about 800.

"It is a ghastly sight when a furnace is opened and the corpses are given to the destructive element. The flames throw a lurid light on the men who are busy with their gloomy task,
and they remind one of evil spirits
from hades, occupied with the torturing of damned souls. I felt that I was having a peep into the hades of Dante."

"Next morning a nauseous smell
spreads throughout the entire region,
and this alone is sufficient to indicate what has happened under cover of the darkness."

TWO TROOPSHIPS SAFELY IN PORT

OTTAWA, April 30.—It is officially announced thru the chief press censor's office that the troopships Scandinavian, which sailed from Canada
on April 17, and the Missanabie, which sailed on April 18, have arrived in the English port in safety. On board the Scandinavian there were the 69th
French-Canadian Battalion, 34 officers and 1023 of other ranks; Army Service Corps draft, 11 officers and 190 of other ranks; Royal Navy, 1
officer and 6 of other ranks; details, 1 officer and 13 of other ranks, 2
nurses.

On board the Missanabie there were the 51st Edmonton Battalion, 37 officers and 1055 of other ranks; Third Divisional Ammunition sub-park, 3 officers and 163 of other ranks; detachment 224th Lumbermen's Battalion, 16 officers and 378 of other

WHAT is brokers?" Mr. Marcus Shimko asked. "A broker is no good; otherwise he wouldn't be a broker. Brokers is fellers which they couldn't make a success of their own affairs, Mr. Zamp, so they butt into everybody else's. Particularly business brokers, Mr. Zamp. Real estate brokers is bad enough, and insurings brokers is a lot of sharks also; but for a cutthroat, a low life bum, understand me, the worst is a business broker!"

"That's all right, too, Mr. Shimko," Harry Zamp said timidly; "but if I would get a partner with, say, for example, $500, I could make a go of this here business."

Mr. Shimko nodded skeptically.

"I ain't saying you couldn't," he agreed, "but where would you find such a partner? Nowadays a feller with $500 don't think of going into retail business no more. The least he expects is he should go right away into manufacturing. Jobbing and retailing is nix for such a feller, understand me—especially clothing, Mr. Zamp, which nowadays even drugstores carries retail clothing as a side line, so cut up the business is."

Harry Zamp nodded gloomily.

"And, furthermore," Shimko added,

"Business brokers could no more get you a partner with money as they could do miracles, Mr. Zamp. Them days is past, Mr. Zamp, and all a business broker could do nowadays is to bring you a feller with experience, and you don't need a business broker for that, Mr. Zamp. Experience in the retail clothing business is like the measles—everybody has had it."

"Then what should I do, Mr. Shimko?" Zamp asked helplessly.

"I must got to get a partner," Zamp said. "I must got to get a partner with money somewhere, ain't it? And if I wouldn't go to a business broker who then would I go to—a bartender?"

"Never mind!" Mr. Shimko exclaimed. "Some people got an idee all bartenders is bums, but wunst in awhile a feller could get from a bartender an advice also. I got working for me wunst in my place down on Park row a feller by the name Klinkowitz, which he is now manager of the Olympic Gardens, on Rivington street, and if I whereat Zamp's eye kindled, and he licked his lips in anticipation. But after Shimko had selected a dark perfect he closed the case deliberately and replaced it in his breast pocket.

"A business man must got to got gumption," he said to the disappointed Zamp, "and if you think you could got a partner just by bringing him into the store here and showing him the stock and fixtures which you got it you are making a big mistake."

"Well, of course I am expecting I should blow him to dinner maybe," Zamp protested, "with a theayter also," Shimko evidenced his disgust by puffing vigorously at his cigar.

"You are just like a whole lot of other people, Zamp," he said. "You are always willing to spend money before you make it. Meiselson comes in here and sees you only got a small stock of piece goods, understand me, and you couldn't afford to keep no help, and then on top of that yet you would take him out and blow him. Naturally he right away gets the idee you are spending your money foolishly instead of putting it into your business, and the whole thing is off."

Zamp shrugged impotently.

"What could I do, Mr. Shimko?" he asked. "I got here a small stock of goods, I know, but that's just the reason why I want a partner."

"And that's just the reason why you wouldn't get one," Shimko declared. "A small stock of piece goods you couldn't help, Zamp; but if you let that feller come into your store and find you ain't got no cutters or customers that's your own fault."

"What d'ye mean, Mr. Shimko?" Zamp demanded.

"I mean this," Shimko explained. "If I would got a store like you got it here, Zamp, and a friend offers to bring me a feller with a couple thousand dollars for a partner, understand me, I would go to work, y'understand, and get a couple cutters and engage 'em for the afternoon. Then I would turn around, y'understand, and go up and see such a feller like Klinkowitz, which he is manager of that theayter on Rivington street, and I would get him to fix up for me a half a dozen young fellers from his theayter, which they would come down to the store for the day, and some of 'em acts like customers and others acts like clerks. Then, when my friend brings in the feller with $2,000, understand me, what do they see? The place is full of customers and salesmen, and in the rear is a couple of cutters chalking lines on pattern papers and cutting it up with shears. You yourself are so busy, understand me, you could hardly talk a word to us. You don't want to know anything about getting a partner at all. What is a partner with $2,000 in a rushing business like you are doing it? I beg of you you should take the matter under consideration, but you pretty near throw me out of the store on account you got so much to do. At last you say you would take a cup coffee with me at 6 o'clock, and I go away with the $2,000 feller, and when we meet again at 6 o'clock he's pretty near crazy to invest his money with you. Do you get the idee?"

"Might you could even get the feller to pay for the coffee, maybe," Zamp suggested, completely carried away by Shimko's enthusiasm.

tain hours of the day."

"I ain't kicking you are not working, Meiselson," Shimko said hastily. "All I am telling you is what for a job is selling toilet soaps and perfumery? You got a limited trade there, Meiselson, because when it comes to toilet soaps, understand me, how many people takes it so particular? I bet yer with a hundred people, Meiselson, eightyuses laundry soap, fifteen ganvers soap from hotels and saloons, and the rest buys wunst in six months a five cent cake of soap. As for perfumery, Meiselson, for a dollar bill you could get enough perfumery to make a thousand people smell like an Italiener barber shop; whereas clothing, Meiselson, everybody must got to wear it. If you are coming to compare clothing with toilet soap for a business, Meiselson, there ain't no more comparison as gold and putty."

Meiselson remained silent.

"Furthermore," Shimko continued, "if Zamp sees a young feller like you, which even your worst enemy must got to admit it, Meiselson, you are a swell dresser, and make a fine, up-to-date appearance, understand me, he would maybe reconsider his decision not to take a partner."

"Did he say he wouldn't take a partner?" Meiselson asked hopefully.

"He says to me so sure as you are sitting there: 'Mr. Shimko, my dear friend, if it would be for your sake I would willingly go as partners together with some young feller,' he says; 'but when a business man is making money,' he says, 'why should he got to got a partner?'"

She says. So I says to him: 'Zamp,' I says, 'here is a young feller which he is going to get married to a young lady by the name Miss Babette Schick.'"

"She ain't so young no longer," Meiselson broke in ungallantly.

"By the name Miss Babette Schick," Shimko continued, recognizing the interruption with a malevolent glare, "which she got, anyhow, a couple thousand dollars," I says; "and for her sake and for my sake," I says, "if I would bring the young feller around here, would you consent to look him over? And he says for my sake he would consent to do it, but we shouldn't go around there till next week."

"All right," Meiselson said; "if you are so dead anxious I should do so, I would go around next week."

"Say, looky here, Meiselson," Shimko burst out angrily, "don't do me no favors! Do you or do you not want to go into a good business? Because, if you don't, say so, and I wouldn't bother my head further."

"Sure, I do," Meiselson said.

"Then I want to tell you something," Shimko continued. "We wouldn't wait till next week at all. With the busi-

If you set 'em up for a live one, Mr. Shimko,' he says, 'he would anyhow buy a couple of rounds, but a dead one, Mr. Shimko,' he says, 'if you show him the least little encouragement, understand me, the least that happens you is he gets away with the whole lunch counter.' Am I right or wrong?"

Mr. Zamp nodded. He resented the imputation that he was a dead one, but he felt bound to agree with Mr. Shimko in view of the circumstance that on the following day he would owe a month's rent with small prospect of being able to pay it. Indeed, he wondered at Mr. Shimko's amiability, for as owner of the Canal street premises Shimko had the reputation of being a harsh landlord. Had Zamp but known it, however, store property on Canal street was not in active demand of late by reason of the new bridge improvements, and Shimko's amiability proceeded from a desire to retain Zamp as a tenant if the latter's solvency could be preserved.

"But I couldn't help myself, Mr. Zamp," Shimko went on. "I got no business keeping a restaurant at all."

As a matter of fact, Mr. Shimko's late restaurant was of the variety popularly designated as a "barrel house," and he had only retired from the business after his license had been revoked.

"Yes, Mr. Zamp," Shimko continued; "In a business like that a feller shouldn't got a heart at all. But I am very funny that way. I couldn't bear to see nobody suffer, understand me, and everybody takes advantage of me on account of it. So I tell you what I would do. My wife got a sort of a relation by the name Miss Babette Schick, which she works for years by a big cloak and suit concern as a designer. She ain't so young no longer, but she got put away in savings bank a couple of thousand dollars, and she is engaged to be married to a young feller by the name Isaac Meiselson, which nobody could tell what he does for a living at all. One thing is certain—with the money this Meiselson gets with Miss Schick he could go as partners together with you and pull you out of the hole, ain't it?"

Mr. Zamp nodded again without enthusiasm.

"Sure, I know, Mr. Shimko," he said,

"but if a young feller would got $2,000 to invest in a business, y'understand, why should he come to me? If he would got only $500, Mr. Shimko, that would be something else again. But with so much as $2,000 a feller could get lots of clothing businesses which they run a big store with a couple of cutters, a half a dozen salesmen and a bookkeeper. What have I got to offer him for $2,000? Me. I am salesman, cutter, bookkeeper and everything. And if this feller comes in here and sees me alone in the place, with no customers ner nothing, he gets an idee it's a dead proposition. Ain't it?"

Shimko pulled out a full cigar case,

to pay for the coffee, maybe." Zamp suggested, completely carried away by Shimko's enthusiasm.

"If the deal goes through," Shimko declared in a burst of generosity, "I would even pay for the coffee myself!"

"And when would you bring the feller here?" Zamp asked.

"I would see him this afternoon yet," Shimko replied as he opened the store door, "and I would telephone you sure, by Dachtel's place, at 4 o'clock."

Zamp, full of gratitude, shook hands with his landlord.

"If I would got such a head like you got it to think out schemes, Mr. Shimko," he said fervently, "I would be a millionaire, I bet yer!"

"The thinking out part is nothing," Shimko said as he turned to leave. "Any blame fool could think out a scheme, y'understand, but it takes a pretty bright feller to make it work!"

"If a feller wouldn't be in business for himself," Shimko said to Isaac Meiselson as they sat in Wasserbauer's cafe that afternoon, "he might just as well never come over from Russland at all."

"I told you before, Mr. Shimko," Meiselson retorted, "I am from Lemberg geborn."

"Oestreich oder Russland, what is the difference?" Shimko asked. "If a feller is working for somebody else, nobody cares who he is or what he is, while if he's got a business of his own, understand me, everybody would respect him, even if he would be born in, we would say for example, China."

"Sure, I know, Mr. Shimko," Meiselson rejoined, "but there is businesses and businesses, and what for a business is a small retail clothing store on Canal street?"

"Small the store may be, I ain't denying it," Shimko said; "but ain't it better a feller does a big business in a small store as a small business in a big store?"

"If he does a big business, yes," Meiselson admitted; "but if a feller does a big business why should he want to got a partner?"

"Ain't I just telling you he don't want no partner?" Shimko interrupted. "And as for doing a big business, I bet yer we could drop in on the feller any time and we would find the store full of people."

"Gewiss," Meiselson commented, "three people playing auction pinochle in a small store is a big crowd!"

"No auction pinochle gets played in that store, Meiselson. The feller has working by him two cutters and three salesmen, and he makes 'em earn their money. Only yesterday I am in the store, and if you would believe me, Meiselson, his own landlord he wouldn't talk to at all, so busy he is."

"In that case what for should he need me for a partner? I couldn't understand at all," Meiselson declared.

"Neither could I," Shimko replied, "but a feller like you, which he would soon got $2,000 to invest, needs him for a partner. A feller like Zamp would keep you straight, Meiselson. What you want is somebody which he is going to make you work."

"What d'ye mean, going to make me work?" Meiselson asked indignantly. "I am working just as hard as you are, Mr. Shimko. When a feller is selling toilet soaps and perfumeries, Mr. Shimko, he couldn't see his trade only cer-

"Then I want to tell you something," Shimko continued. "We wouldn't wait till next week at all. With the business that feller does, delays is dangerous. If we would wait till next week some one offers him a good price and buys him out maybe. Tomorrow afternoon, 2 o'clock, you and me goes over to his store, understand me, and we catches him unawares. Then you could see for yourself what a business that feller is doing."

Meiselson shrugged.

"I am agreeable," he said.

"Because," Shimko went on, thoroughly aroused by Meiselson's apathy, "if you're such a fool that you don't know it, Meiselson, I must got to tell you. Wunst in awhile if a business man is going to get a feller for partner, when he knows the feller is coming around to look the business over he plants phony customers around the store and makes it show up like it was a fine business, when in reality he is going to bust up right away."

"So?" Meiselson commented, and Shimko glared at him ferociously.

"You don't appreciate what I am doing for you at all!" Shimko cried. "I wouldn't telephone the feller or nothing that we are coming, understand me? We'll take him by surprise."

Meiselson shrugged.

"Go ahead and take him by surprise if you want to," he said wearily.

In point of fact, Isaac Meiselson was quite content to remain in the soap and perfumery trade, and it was only by dint of much persuasion on Miss Babette Schick's part that he was prevailed upon to embark in a more lucrative business. It seemed a distinct step downward when he compared the well nigh tender methods employed by him in disposing of soap and perfumery to the proprietresses of beauty parlors with the more robust salesmanship in vogue in the retail clothing business.

"Also I would meet you right here," Shimko concluded, "at half past 1 sharp tomorrow."

After the conclusion of his interview with Isaac Meiselson, Shimko repaired immediately to Zamp's tailoring establishment, and together they proceeded to the office of Mr. Boris Klinskowitz, manager of the Olympic gardens, on Rivington street. Shimko explained the object of their business, and in less than half an hour the resourceful Klinskowitz had engaged a force of cutters, salesmen and customers sufficient to throng Harry Zamp's store for the entire day.

"You would see how smooth the whole thing goes," Klinskowitz declared after he had concluded his arrangements. "The cutters is genuine cutters, members from a union already, and the salesmen works for years by a couple concerns on Park Row."

"And the customers?" Zamp asked.

"That depends on yourself," Klinskowitz replied. "If you got a couple real bargains in sample garments I would not be surprised if the customers could be genuine customers also. Two of 'em works here as waiters, evenings, and the other three ain't no bums, either. I called a dress rehearsal at your store tomorrow morning 10 o'clock."

On the following day, when Mr. Shimko visited his tenant's store, he rubbed his eyes.

"Ain't it wonderful!" he exclaimed.

Zamp jumped nervously as the door

"Did you ever see the like?" he cried.

The two clerks, supplemented by a third salesman, who had been hired
by telephone, were extolling the vir-

tones, and the atmosphere of the lit-

At this juncture Melselson raised his

He opened the store door and started

"Koosh, Mr. Shimko!" Melselson said.
"I am in the soap and perfumery busi-

We sometimes think we are special-

Weather influences on man may be roughly divided into two classes—viz,
those which are direct and obvious and
those which are the more or less indi-

longing to the second class have been during the past decade or so the subject of immense research.

Some persons are pronounced "me-

persons, as a rule, are more specifically "cyclonopaths." The passage of cy-

Indeed, a replica of the coat and vest hung in the window of his enlarged business premises on Canal street la-beled "The Latest From the London Pickadillies," and he had sold, strictly for cash, more than a dozen of the same style during the last twenty-four hours. For the rush of trade which began on the day when he hired the "property" salesmen and cutters had not only continued, but had actually increased, and it was therefore with the most pleasurable sensations that he recognized at the next table Isaac Meiselson, the unconscious cause of all his prosperity.

"Excuse me," he began. "Ain't your name Meiselson?"

"My name is Mr. Meiselson," Isaac admitted. "This is Mr. Zamp, ain't it?" Zamp nodded.

"You look pretty well, considering the way you are working in that cloth-ing business of yours," Meiselson re-marked.

"Hard work never hurted me none," Zamp answered. "Are you still in the soap and perfumery business, Mr. Meiselson?"

Meiselson shook his head.

"No," he said. "I went out of the soap business when I got married last month."

"Is that so?" Zamp commented. "And did you go into another busi-ness?"

"Not yet," Meiselson replied, and then he smiled. "The fact is," he added in a burst of confidence, "my wife is a dressmaker."

The Measure.

The ancient judge sat before the scales of worth.

"Bring forth the royal treasure!" he cried, and the hurrying slaves poured into the huge pans sacks of golden metal, caskets of sparkling gems until it seemed as if all the wealth of earth were there. Yet the balance never stirred.

"Let the learning of the ages be added," came the order, and tons upon tons of the wisdom of sages, philoso-phers, scientists and poets was heaped upon the pile. And still the great arm of the scales remained high in air.

"Add now the men of power and high position," said the judge, "and the scale will fall." But all in vain.

"But what is on the other side that outweighs all these?" asked one.

"It is character," said the judge.—Portal.

Walter Was Puzzled.

This is a true story. Little Walter, whose father is a professor in a middle west university, was scrutinizing his parents closely and said: "Father, you have such heavy eyebrows, and mother has hardly any. What are eyebrows for?" The father replied, impromptu, "Why, eyebrows are—er—eyebrows are to keep the perspiration from get-ting into people's eyes when they work hard." "But, father," protested Wal-ter, "I don't see how that can be, for mother's would need to be many times heavier than yours." And father was lost in thought.

close to the skin and then demanded his fee. "But," said the sufferer, "the head of the arrow is still inside."

"Quite right," said the doctor. "I am a specialist. I deal only with out-side diseases. If you want the head taken out you will have to go to an-other specialist who cares for inside ailments."

WON BY DARING WIT.

Story of Czar Paul, His Sacred Snuff-box and a Wager.

Czar Paul's snuffbox was as sacred as the imperial crown itself. No one was allowed to touch it. Kapioff wa-gered that he would take a pinch out of it.

One morning he walked up to the ta-ble which stood near the bed on which the czar still reclined and boldly took from it the majestic snuffbox. Open-ing it noisily, he inserted his fingers, and, while Paul I. was watching him, in stupefaction at such audacity, he sniffed up the fragrant powder with evident satisfaction.

"What are you doing there, you rogue?" exclaimed the czar excitedly.

"Having a pinch of snuff, sire. I have now been on duty for eight hours, and, feeling drowsy, I thought it would keep me awake, for I would rather break the rules of etiquette than neglect my duty."

Paul burst out laughing and merely replied:

"That's right enough, my lad, but as the snuffbox is not large enough for both of us you can keep it for your-self."

Nations That Left No Sign.

There are two great nations of an-tiquity whose inscriptions cannot yet be read—the Etruscans and the Hit-tites. The Etruscans occupied a part of Italy corresponding roughly to what is now known as Tuscany. The Hittites at one time occupied a part of Pales-tine and united with the Canaanites to resist the invasion by the Israelites under Joshua. The Etruscan and Hit-tite inscriptions have thus far resisted the attempts of scholars to decipher them, though no one knows when some one may stumble on a bilingual in-scription which will serve as a key, just as the Rosetta stone, discovered in Egypt in 1799, served as a key to the Egyptian hieroglyphics. In the new world the so called Maya inscriptions, found on the ruins in Yucatan, are also a puzzle to scientists.

Not An Epicure.

One afternoon a sad eyed hobo ram-bled up the garden walk of a suburban home and meekfully tapped on the back door.

"Lady," said he in a tearful voice to the woman who answered his knock, "I hain't had a thing to eat since last week. If you would only give me some bread or"—

"Mary," suddenly interjected the wo-man, addressing some invisible person, "bring Towser out here at once."

"All right, dear lady," said the hobo in a resigned voice; "even dog meat is better than starvin' to death."

Laughter.

Laughter begins either with the mouth or the eyes. Then come the other muscular groups, and then come the vocal expressions of laughter, such as brays, cackles, sniggers, simpers, giggles, snorts, grunts, foghorn rum-bles, yells, shrieks, guffaws, trills, chuckles, sniffles and all sorts of pec-uliar bird notes and musical sounds.

CANADA'S CALL FOR SERVICE AT HOME

Produce More and Save More

The Empire needs food. If you are not in the fighting line you may be in the producing line. Labour is limited—all the more reason to do more than ever before. Grow food for the men who are fighting for you. The Allies need all the food that you can produce. Every little helps. You are responsible for your own work. If you cannot produce as much as you would like, produce all you can. Work with the right spirit. Put fighting energy into your effort and produce now when it counts. The more you produce the more you can save. Producing and saving are war-service.

Make Your Labour Efficient

In war-time do not waste time and energy on unimportant and unprofitable work. Economize labour. Put off unproductive work till after the war, and, if possible, help in producing something needed now. Let us not waste labour. Canada needs it all. If possible help to feed the Allies. Make your backyard a productive garden. Cultivate it with a will. Make your labour count for as much as possible.

Do Not Waste Materials

There should be no waste in war-time. Canada could pay the annual interest on her war expenditure out of what we waste on our farms, in our factories, in our homes. Every pound of food saved from waste is as good as a pound of increased production. The way for a nation to save is for every individual to save. France is strong to-day because of thrift in time of peace. The men and women of Great Britain are not only "doing" but are learning to "do without."

Spend Your Money Wisely

Practise economy in the home by eliminating luxuries. Wasting our dollars here weakens our strength at the Front. Your savings will help Canada to finance the war. Save your money for the next Dominion War issue. There can be no better investment.

From 1910 to 1915 there was an increase of less than 50 per cent. in the wheat acreage of Canada, but there was in the same time an addition of nearly 200 per cent. to the yield. The larger yield of 1915 was, however, mainly the result of an exceptionally favorable season.

Soil for a Garden.

Perhaps the most common mistake made in fertilizing a garden is to use barnyard manures alone. All forms of manure contain too large a proportion of nitrogen to the other elements; manures of hens and sheep being worst in this respect. The result is that when the garden is fertilized with manure alone in large quantities, one is most likely to have a very rapid and rank growth of stem and leaf, not in the best of health, but inclined to be tender and feeble. This, of course, is must better for such crops as celery, cabbage, or similar things which are largely leaf and stem, but not so good for those which develop seed like peas or beans, or which develop roots and tubers like beets or potatoes. The remedy is not to use more stable manure, but rather to use something in connection with this manure that will reinforce it and supply what the manure lacks. Farmers use to serve this purpose a chemical fertilizer; either ground bone and sulphate of potash, or acid phosphate in the place of the ground bone. In other places where wood ashes can be obtained, this will make an ideal substitute or addition to the manure. If your land is well drained, therefore, and not sour, you can plow under a good coat of manure, then spread wood ashes freely on top and have that raked or harrowed in, and you will then have an excellent preparation for any garden crop.

They got Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery' and this medicine completely cured me."—MRS. ADELIA HIBBARD, 26 Cheever St.

Kilbride, Ont.—"When I was only eleven months old my mother procured 'Golden Medical Discovery' for me. I have taken it several times myself since and about one year ago I gave it to my two children. They recovered very quickly with no bad results, after taking one bottle. I have recommended it to quite a number of late."—MRS. W. J. SIMKINS, Kilbride, Ont.

The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated and the body is wasted by emaciation, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in most cases effect a permanent cure.

Get it to-day from any medicine dealer; it is a powerful blood-purifier, so penetrating that it even gets at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system.

Remember it is not a patent medicine for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. It's a pure glyceric extract of roots, made without alcohol.

the seed with hot water or with formaldehyde solution before sowing is an easy, cheap, and effective way of preventing this disease. The latter method, which is the one most available for general use, is here briefly summarized.

Mix the formalin (a commercial preparation which is 37 per cent. formaldehyde by weight) with water at the rate of a pound (a little less than a pint) to forty gallons of water. The grain may be either loosely inclosed in sacks or put loose into a tub or vat with the solution. Agitate the sacks or stir the loose grain occasionally so that the entire surface of every grain will be thoroughly wet. Instead of being immersed, the seed oats may be spread on a clean floor or canvas and sprinkled with the solution and shoveled over during the process so that they will be wet evenly, as in the other method. Not over a gallon of solution will be needed for every bushel of dry grain. After sprinkling shovel the seed into a pile, cover it with sacks wet with the solution, and allow it to stand for at least two hours before spreading it out to dry.

Precautions.—The oats may be seeded as soon as dry enough to run through the drill. If the seed is still moist, however, the drill must be set to sow more to the acre than if it is dry. The quantity which should be sown may be determined by measuring a given bulk before and after treatment and figuring the proportion of increase. After treating do not expose the seed to freezing until it is thoroughly dry.

Do not allow the treated seed to come into contact with old sacks, bins, or machinery in which there may be smut spores. If such must be used scald them or wash them first with the formaldehyde solution.

many pairs of arms as there are wires on the fence. After each fruiting season the laterals are cut back to spurs of one and two buds each.

This fence is cultivated regularly on both the inner and road side and fertilized equally with the vineyards. It is very sightly in the early summer with its trim, tender young growth and freshly stirred soil, and of course its appearance is very attractive when its load of purple fruit is ripe. Then it serves to shield the inner vineyard from marauders. Even so, this kindly defensive does not suffer to any extent from hungry wayfarers, though hordes of summer pleasure seekers are within a mile and a half of the farm.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEES.

Bees are indispensable to horticulture.

Bee culture is not only profitable, but an interesting occupation.

A successful beekeeper is well paid for time spent. He gets a quick return on his investment.

Bees may be kept anywhere—on the city roof, in the village backyard, or in the garden on the farm.

Beekeeping may be followed by man or woman, by rich or poor, by young or old.

The presence or the absence of bees in an orchard often means the difference between success or failure with the crop. Many of the varieties of strawberries absolutely depend upon insects for cross pollination. Among apples some varieties depend wholly on insects for fertilization, and even those that are self fertilized are improved by the transference of pollen from other blossoms. Some fruits in which pollen is normally distributed by the wind would not produce much fruit if the wind did not happen to be favorable at the time of blossoming. When bees are present the direction of the wind is immaterial.

Horse Collars.

Look well to the fit of the collar. Clip the long, rough hair so as to secure a smooth, even surface for the collar to rest upon. Each evening after unharnessing have a bucket filled with common air-slacked lime handy. Dust the shoulder thoroughly with it. Brush it out the next morning with a soft brush.

SEPARATE SKIRT.

Style Tips About This Re- vived, Popular Garment.

The separate skirt is in for an excel- lent season. Always the outing period is favorable to the skirt of crash linen, velveteen, corduroy and kindred fab- rics. To these has been added recent- ly an exceedingly fine silk jersey with a satin finish, which may be consid- ered the skirt de luxe of the season.

If one chooses a velveteen skirt it must be of a pastel color. To wear a skirt of black velveteen for sporting purposes is to advertise oneself behind the times. The models of delicate blue, pale pink, violet, canary, Nile green and rose are exceedingly modish. To be sure, the white velveteen is also listed. It must be remembered that the velveteen is newer and smarter than the corduroy.

Should velveteen be considered too delicate or lacking in serviceable qual- ities there is the linen alternative in heavy weave and in the so called pas- tel or rainbow nuances. There is lit- tle attempt to drape these skirts, but the lines are very full, and many of them have pocket accessories.

For dressy purposes there are sep- arate skirts of striped taffeta, princ- ially in the black and white combina- tion, or of shot taffeta, made with platings or ruches to go with the sep- arate blouse of georgette crepe, which may be garnished with bead em- broideries or applique motifs. The black taffeta skirt will always find a place in the sartorial affections of the practical woman, and now it is much more dressy in its lines and trimmings than during the past few seasons.

One cannot omit mention of the broadly striped linens and heavy cot- ton fabrics that are offered in the new skirts. To say that they are striking is to put it mildly. Anything less than an inch wide for the stripe is regard- ed as too mild and unobtrusive to be worthy of a place on fashion's schedule.

Black and white stripes come in for approbation, but they by no means have the field to themselves.

EXPERTS IN HOMES

What Does Household "Efficiency" Mean to You?

MOSTLY INDIVIDUAL VIEWPOINT

Is It Running a Home Well or Inex- pensively or Easily, or Is It, Rather, the Mental Attitude Women Maintain Toward Their Special Work?

What is your idea of household effi- ciency? To every woman the phrase means something different.

Perfect efficiency cannot be entirely a matter of book accounts, of time and labor saving devices—in fact, of phys- ical work. Efficiency is as much a mat- ter of mental attitude as anything else. Does this seem absurd to you on first thoughts? Think it over a little fur- ther, and the more you think into it the less absurd it will seem.

It has often been said that every sin- gle thing in the universe has first been built in mind before it has taken visi- ble shape. The buildings have been planned in architects' minds; the streets have been all thought out by contractors; books, painting, music—all have had birth in mind first. So it is with every one of our successes, it is said. The success is thought of long before it actually arrives.

Now let us go back to this question of household efficiency being a mental attitude first and foremost. You may bring up in argument that a house- wife may think efficiently as much as she likes, but if she has had no prac- tice in running her home along the most approved lines she cannot very well put her thoughts into demon- stration. You may say in proof that the girl who has spent her time in a busi- ness office cannot be as practical a housewife as the girl trained in domes- tic science no matter how efficient a mind the former may have.

Your theory, if you follow this line

Another woman also uses dates in baked custard, in tapioca and as filling for cookies, pies and cakes. Mixed with apples, celery and nuts they make a delicious salad. To use dates as a pudding cooked with rice, add to a quart of milk a cup of stoned dates and a quarter of a cup of rice. Sweeten and bake in a slow oven.

Cook keeps in her cold closet an assortment of pastes and butters that are used so much in preparing relishes for the tea, after dinner suppers and bridge parties. She has them ready in small, labeled glass jars and tidbits and sauces can be made at a moment's notice. Here are a few of her best recipes:

Sardine Butter.—Rub skinned and boned sardines to a paste and then gradually blend. A little lemon juice may be added to butter to give it very desirable sandwich flavors. Orange butter for afternoon tea sandwiches can be mixed with chopped nuts and figs or any other sweet filling. Grated orange rind may flavor the butter.

Olives may be ground in a vegetable chopper, mashed to a paste and creamed into butter. Capers are chopped and creamed with butter, and either of these can be used on broiled chops or beefsteaks, as sandwich butters or on green peas or string beans to improve the flavor.

Make Your Own Fernery.

You can have success with grapefruit seeds by taking a few precautions. When planting these seeds do not keep any that have been cut. Then, before planting, the seeds should be soaked for one day or at least half a day. Fill the receptacle up to within three-quarters of an inch of the top with dirt mixed with a little sand, on which place the seeds so thickly that no soil can be seen. Then cover with dirt and keep in a warm, sunny place, wetting with warm water, but not too wet. The seeds sprout in about five weeks. They are both beautiful and hardy and need practically no attention.

A Polished Diplomat.

"Did you see anything that particularly struck your fancy when you were looking around the furniture shops to-day?" asked a young husband of his lately made wife on her return from a tour of furniture inspection.

"Yes," she replied; "I saw something that was exceedingly pretty in looking glasses."

"I have no doubt you did," he observed, "if you looked into them."

The halo of a calm, sweet peace rests upon that home.

FLATTERY.

Beware of him who flatters you to your face or to one he thinks will tell you of it. Most probably he has either deceived you or means to do so. Remember the fable of the fox commending the singing of the crow, who had something in her mouth which the fox wanted.—Sir Matthew Hale.

Your theory, if you follow this line of reasoning, as so many women do, has some good points, but, on the whole, is without backbone. As a matter of fact, the business girl very often makes a much better housewife than the girl trained in all the homely arts. The business girl brings business methods to bear on the running of her home. She has an efficient mind and she uses it. For instance, she is quick to detect that many steps are lost in going from icebox to stove or from sink to china closet, and she seeks a remedy at once, whereas the home girl takes such things as a few extra steps here and there quite as a matter of course and would never think of trying to change things.

The woman of another type looks on housekeeping as the most stupid thing, to be hurried through and got rid of as quickly as possible. Still another type is fond of one particular branch of housework and neglects the rest of the work for its sake.

Now, how can such women run a well organized home? They may have all the practical knowledge on earth, but their attitude toward housekeeping is so very wrong that their homes will never be efficiently managed until they change their attitudes. When they have learned to look on housekeeping as an all engrossing, scientific study which requires all concentration and interest they will begin to show efficient results, not before.

Dear Sirs,

We have used Brandram's B. B. Genuine White Lead--after a careful test of all other white leads--both foreign and domestic --and we use it exclusively in our work.

For the essential quality of Body--opacity and spreading evenly--securing uniform results by liquid vehicles--retaining its colour--it has reached a point where nothing better could be made.

Yours, faithfully,

THE WAR BOOK OF 1916.

It would perhaps be too much to say that the Agricultural War Book, issued for free distribution by the Federal Department of Agriculture, is the most complete book ever published in Canada, entirely devoted to the subject of which it mainly treats. Yet in variety it certainly is. Besides the general matter brought together by the editor, the Commissioner of Agriculture, some seventy agricultural and education experts have contributed to its 250 pages, including the Federal Ministers of Agriculture and Finance, the Live Stock Commissioner, and Dairy Commissioner for the Dominion, chiefs and sub-chiefs of various departments and divisions, federal and provincial, and professors at the Ontario and other agricultural colleges.

While there are statistics of the world's as well as of Canada's produce last year, the purposes of comparison, and two or three years preceding, the book is a long way from being confined to figures. On the contrary it contains pages upon pages of textual information, instruction and sound advice appertaining to its title—"Production and Thrift." Not alone would the farmer and breeder be the better for its study but every householder, every citizen would profit by following its counsel, which in ageneral sense is embodied in the motto that appears on the front cover, namely:

IN WAR TIME

Produce more and save more,
Make your labor efficient,
Save material from waste,
Spend your money wisely.

day and Thursday, May 17th and 18th. #### The Bay of Quinte Clerical Union.

This society of Anglican Clergy held a most successful meeting in Napanee this week, there being present the Bishops of Ottawa and of Kingston, and twenty-five other clergy. A good programme had been prepared and the papers and discussions were of a high order. A public service was held in St. Mary Magdalene church on Wednesday evening, and was very beautiful and impressive. The Bishop of Ottawa preached from the words "Abide in Me," a deeply spiritual and uplifting sermon. He also conducted a devotional meeting of the clergy on Wednesday afternoon.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the Daughters of the Empire.

The presentation of clasps by the "United Empire Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E., last week, to several of his members was a most interesting and successful event.

The ladies receiving the above were much touched by the thoughtful kindness which prompted the presentation and at the same time, delighted with the beauty and appropriateness of the decoration.

The satisfaction of the donors in having the privilege of making these presentations bring quite as great as the pride of the ladies in being entitled to wear emblems showing that each one "has done what she could" for king and country.

We would urge all our members and workers to remember that though much has been accomplished, and a fine amount of work done, we have not yet completed the second year of the war, and apparently, the end is not yet in sight, so we must not be weary of well doing, and recollect that there is much want and suffering that we can help, at least in a measure, to relieve. Therefore, let us do all we can, and among others, when renovating our homes this spring—do not forget the homeless, and the innumerable allies, who need all we can give them.

They have sacrificed much for us, let us do something for them!

Our room is open every Thursday and Saturday and Thursday afternoon until 5.30 o'clock, when we welcome all friends and workers.

Look in another column for notice relating to collection of waste paper.

"FIXING" THE STREETS.

They took a little gravel,
And took a little tar,
With various ingredients
Imported from afar.
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away,
They said they had a pavement,
To last for many a day.

They came with picks and smote it,
To lay a water main,
And then they called the workmen,
To put it back again;
To open up a sewer,
They took it up once more,
And then they put it back again,
Just where it was before.

They took it up for many reasons,
Some gas leaks, one or more,
And then they put it back again,
As hard as it was before;
They tore it up for wires,
To feed the electric light,
And then they put it down again,
Which was no more than right.

Oh, the pavement's full of furrows;
There are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement,
A credit to the town;
They're always digging of it up,

The Red Cross Society

The following letter has been received from Captain Nichols:
Mrs. F. F. Miller,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Mrs. Miller:—
If you could have heard the cheer which greeted my announcement to the men of "C" Company of the gift of a gross pair of socks, there would be no necessity to ask you to accept the thanks of the Officers and men for the magnificent gift from the Napanee Red Cross Society. It was indeed a present from home and the socks were appreciated most thoroughly.

I shall take the liberty of letting you know how the men fare in the trenches, in the hope that you will be able to send some comforts to our men, when they are doing the work,
for which they are now training.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) R. W. NICHOLS, Capt.
80th Batt. C.E.F.

Acknowledgment has been received from headquarters of a box of hospital supplies sent last week.

The Society thankfully acknowledges
$4 from Miss Magee's pupils of S. S.

It's a very handsome pavement.
A credit to the town;
They're always digging of it up,
Or puttin' of it down.
